BUDGET COMMENTS

The Social Services budget reflects goals and objectives identified in Goal 4 of the County's Strategic Plan: "Promoting a Healthy Community." Top priorities in the budget include supporting children in foster care. James City County was ranked first in the State for founded incidences of child abuse and neglect. Services to an ever-increasing elderly population are also a priority. A focus on prevention will continue for children, the elderly, and the disabled. Services to at-risk youth will be expanded in order to prevent costly placements. Finding avenues to address the high use of cocaine will be explored as a clear link has been identified between drugs and a significant increase in demand for services, such as those ordered by the Court. An aggressive Welfare Fraud Program will also be expanded.

Administrative expenses include compensation that supports the Market-Based Pay System and an expansion of programs related to the Foster and Child Care. The Cost of the Comprehensive Services Act for At-Risk Youth remains stable and a interagency regional community policy and management team meets monthly and explores cost-effective service delivery. These funds are used only for children in foster care.

Other direct services provided by Social Services include Investigation of child abuse and neglect, home evaluations and custody mediation for the court, recruitment and training of foster parents, family preservation and support services, child care, parent education and training, job assistance, investigation of adult abuse and neglect, nursing home screenings, and services to the elderly and disabled.

Financial Programs include Temporary Assistance to Needy Families, Medicaid, Food Stamps, Auxiliary Grants, State and Local Hospitalization, Fuel Assistance, General Relief, and Title IVE Foster Care.

Revenue Maximization is a new initiative for the County. It is a process for claiming federal reimbursement which has been utilized by other states for many years. The federally reimbursed funds are drawn down on expenditures for at risk children. They must be used to enhance and expand human services needs within our community, they cannot be used to supplant existing funding. Virginia began the local initiative in 1997 through several pilot programs. At that time Virginia ranked near the bottom in recovery of Federal funds for human services programs. The State Department of Social Services offered the program to all local agencies in the State beginning FY 2000. James City County was one of the first to begin a Revenue Maximization Program and today we serve as consultants to other localities setting up similar programs. The program has had the full support and involvement of Division of Social Services, Community Services, and Financial and Management Services. The JCC Board of Supervisors was ultimately responsible for establishing our program. On April 11, 2000 it adopted the Resolution and authorized the County Administrator to sign the contract. The reclamation process generates new revenues which are allocated to community agencies the following fiscal year.
